ST. LOUIS TECHNOLOGY CONSULTING FIRM OPENS REGIONAL OFFICE IN MINNEAPOLIS

Expects to Add 12 Employees by End of 2006

ST. LOUIS, MO – August 1, 2006 – St. Louis-based Daugherty Business Solutions, a premier technology consulting firm, today announced the opening of a regional office in Minneapolis, Minnesota. The new location will provide the needed infrastructure to better serve the firm's many new clients in the region, and will be staffed initially by senior-level consultants from the firm's other office locations. The company has efforts in place to recruit experienced local candidates to help build a solid foundation in the region.

"We are excited to move into the Minneapolis area," said Ron Daugherty, CEO and co-founder of Daugherty Business Solutions. "Minneapolis has strong economic base and we look forward to becoming active members of the local business community."

The Minneapolis office is part of a deliberate expansion plan by Daugherty Business Solutions. "Our decision to expand is the next step in our continuing growth. Over the past 21 years, we've opened branches in Chicago and Atlanta. Over the next two years we will continue to establish a presence in other regions in order to better serve companies in those areas and provide more convenient infrastructure for our consulting teams," Daugherty said.

The new office is located in southwestern suburban Minneapolis in the Normandale Lake Office Park at 8400 Normandale Lake Blvd, Suite 920, Bloomington, MN 55437 and is just seven miles west of the Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport.
